Dear Class,

I’m looking forward to doing this elective with you and want to get the early readings out asap. I’m assigning a lot but understand that you may not be able to read everything. DO AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE. For the second class, Margaret Crastnopol will be joining us by SKYPE. Margaret is a relational analyst, a prolific writer, a co-editor with me on Psychoanalytic Dialogues, and a graduate of the White Institute. She has agreed to share some of the history—and her personal experience—of Interpersonal and early Relational Psychoanalysis in New York. For the remaining four classes we will read Ehrenberg, Bromberg, Donnell, and Irwin Hirsch. Kati Breckenridge will join us for the Ehrenberg class, and Estelle Shane will come for the Stern session.

FIRST CLASS: September 28, 2013
OVERVIEW AND BACKGROUND

First Two Chapters of Handbook of Interpersonal Psychoanalysis, Routledge, New York

Fromm, E., Remarks on the Problem of Free Association, Pioneers

Bone, H., The Interpersonal and the Intra Personal, Pioneers

Mitchell, S. & Black, M., Harry Stack Sullivan and Interpersonal Psychoanalysis. In Freud and Beyond

--- Interaction in the interpersonal Tradition. In Influence and Autonomy

Levenson, E., Show and Tell: The Recursive Order of the Transference

Searles, H., The Patient as Therapist to his Analyst

Gill, M., The Interpersonal Paradigm and the degree of the Therapist’s Involvement

SECOND CLASS: October 26, 2013
MORE BACKGROUND AND MARGARET CRASTNOPOL

